Special Rally Held By Local A.Y.P.A.

Over the week-end of March 15 and 16, eleven young people from the city motored to Wainwright, one of the three rural points visited.

Saturday night the President of the Edmonton District Council of the A.Y.P.A., Norman Piccard, showed motion pictures of the summer camp at Kapasiwin, and pictures of Europe. Following a hearty singing, an indoor track meet was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Before dispersing for the night, a lovely lunch was served.

At 8:30 Sunday morning, everyone attended Holy Communion. Breakfast was served at the I.O.O.F. Hall. Norman Piccard gave a very interesting talk about A.Y.P.A.

During the church service in the morning (11:00 a.m.), one of the boys from the city read the second lesson. Pictures were taken after church. During the service there was an installation service of our A.Y.P.A. officers.

At 3 o'clock, all the Young People gathered at the home of Mrs. Frank McLeod for a discussion period. "What can we believe in?" It was really a very inspiring meeting. New ideas were circulated. The main thing derived from this informal discussion was that young people are seeking Christ in a big way.

When church service was over in the evening, the visitors left for the city.

GREENSHIELDS

At the week end Mrs. W. Ganache and little son went to visit her uncle, Mr. S. Merrick, north of town.

Mrs. W. Lyle and Mrs. J. Chynoweth have been recent visitors here between trains, renewing acquaintances with Mrs. Moore and Mrs. McDougall.

Leut. R. G. Morrison was at home over Sunday.

At time of writing it appears that Spring has come. Most everyone has already had enough winter and will welcome bare fields and dry footing.

Phil May has now moved his butcher shop to the Safeway Store which he recently purchased and can supply the "inner man's wants" completely as he has a full line of groceries taken over from Safeway.

MAYOR'S SON GETS HIS WINGS

Courtesy of St. John's (Nfld.) Times-Journal

In order that they might be present at the ceremony, Mayor J. G. and Mrs. Middlemas journeyed to St. Thomas, Ont., to attend the graduating exercises at the No. 4 School of Bombing and Gunnery at Pinal, Ont., which took place on Sat., March 15th.

Among the very many relatives of the boys who were present, Dr. and Mrs. Middlemas had completed the longest journey for the purpose. This monies, and following that, the assembled guests who were assembled in the huge drill hall were entertained to tea by the officers.

Leader Kennedy, conducted the ceremony at the first graduation ceremony at which relatives had been allowed to be present, and no doubt they felt justly proud to see their son Joseph G. (Mickey) decorated with his wings as a sergeant-observer, he having tied for second honors in a class of well over fifty flyer students.

Congratulations are extended to the young officer, who was born in Wainwright, and who was a two-year student in dental surgery at Alberta University when he decided to heed his country's call, and enlisted in the R.C.A.F.

Will Meet Minister Re. Highway Fourteen

Quite a large number of business men from Wainwright, Chauvin, Ribstone, and Edgerton, are in the city today where they are to meet an appointment with Hon. W. Fallow, minister of public works in the legislature, regarding the matter of the completion of Highway 14 during the coming summer. Practically all public bodies of the district are represented in the delegation.

War Services Drive Opened This Week

The campaign for funds for Canadian War Services got under way on Monday last, and as this appeal is to cover all appeals for funds from the Canadian Legion, the Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., I.O.D.E. and the Knights of Columbus (each of which is doing everything possible for our boys in the fighting services) and is Dominion wide, the $5,500,000 should not prove to be a hardship for ALL to support.

This war is approaching a climax. Our Canadian boys are facing great and unknown perils; so surely it is not asking much that each of us at home should contribute funds to keep going the war services that mean so much to the men who are fighting our battle on land and sea and in the air.

Don't grumble at being asked for a few dollars or a few bushels of wheat. After all, what have YOU done; what risks have you run; what prospective dangers do you face compared with what the boys are risking and facing on the battle fronts of the world?

The slogan is: "We cannot let them down!" but the truth is WE DARE NOT LET THEM DOWN. Surely we are all made of better stuff than to even think of failure.

YOU do your part and all will be well.

Mr. Steve Bowerman was up to the city on Monday on business.

"THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT"

This Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the feature at the Elite Theatre will be the melodrama, "They Drive by Night."

"Joe" and "Paul", brothers, by keeping several jumps ahead of the "repossessors", manage to elude a "living by trucking." "Lana Carlson", a love with "Joe", who ignores her, influences her husband to give "Joe" a steady job in his trucking business, and then attempts to force herself upon him. "Lana" finds out "Joe" and "Casie" are to be wed she confesses murdering her husband at the instigation of "Joe." However, in a tense witness stand scene, her mind completely collapses and the falsehood of the accusation is proved.

IN THE GRIP of BERLIN and MOSCOW

Steadily, ruthlessly, the oppressors of Berlin and Moscow are grinding the life out of Poland. Its industrial provinces, nearest to Germany, have been incorporated in the Reich. East of the Bug, the Russian Gopu holds sway, forcing thousands of Poles from their homes to wastes of Central Siberia. Between the eastern and western provinces lies a sort of no man's land, ironically known as the Gouvernement General, where theoretically the Poles still have some rights left but in reality the Gestapo rules.

In the area incorporated in the German Reich (Poznan, Pomorze, Silesia, Lodz, Kalis, Plock and Kujawy provinces) according to advice received by the Polish government in London, there is not a city or small town where there have not been mass executions of Poles, mainly drawn from the intellectual classes. Recent detailed estimates confirm that in the town of Bydgoszcz alone, over 10,000 Poles have been murdered, many of them women and children. In the rest of Pomorze the number of people murdered exceeds a further ten thousand and in Poznan province the number of some 15,000. The total number of people murdered by the Gestapo throughout the German occupied area is given as over 70,000.

At Warsaw in the Gouvernement General, executions were formerly carried out in various parts of the city. For instance, in the Sejm gardens in the daytime and in full view of the people. Today the chief place of execution for Warsaw and the environs is the locality of Palmira, outside the city. In this place, there are nearly a score of collective graves of people so murdered, in which probably some two thousand people, mainly from intellectual circles, are buried. There are always several trenches, dug by Jewish enforced labor, waiting for the next batch of prisoners. Among those shot at Palmira was the leader of the Polish Socialists.

Through a Polish couple who succeeded in escaping from Soviet Russia by the Eastern route authentic details confirming all that has been written about the nature of the Soviet deportations from Eastern Poland, have recently come to hand. The couple fled before the German invasion in South-Western Poland, and at the end of 1939 reached Stanislawow in the area controlled by Soviet Russia, where they remained until the Spring. Here the Soviet authorities unexpectedly ordered the registration of all who were not permanent inhabitants. The man was arrested, and deported to Dnepropetrovsk while his wife was carried off to the interior of Russia. At Orenburg, on the Samara-Tashkent line, she happened to find a group of Poles who were also being deported, and travelled with them. The Poles were transported on open trucks, the last truck being occupied by the G.P.U. guards armed with automatic rifles. There was a special wagon for the train commandant, and a separate covered truck for mothers with infants at the breast.

On the journey a great number of the deportees died. The destination, which was not known in advance, was Boksak-Dala, situated in the famous "Hungry Steppe." From Perovsk all the deportees, including women and children, were driven on foot to Asche Kul, and on arrival were told to "establish settlements" along the river Chai. Owing to the exertions of Polish doctors with the party, who had carried hypodermic syringes and serums with them, an incipient outbreak of typhoid among the deportees was checked. The shortage of food and water during the summer

E. L. Bushnell

E. L. Bushnell, General Supervisor of Programmes for the CBC, is pictured above in his office at C.B.C. programme headquarters, Toronto, shortly after his return from six active and exciting months spent in England. From August, 1940, to January, 1941, Mr. Bushnell was "seconded" so to speak, to the British Broadcasting Corporation, assisting heat caused much illness and mortality especially among the children.

BBC officials in London in the production of their important Empire transmission to North America. Such world-famous programmes as the "BBC Newscast," "Britain Speaks," and others, were produced under his supervision. Recently he described his experiences during some of London's worst night-raids in a talk over the national network, during which he quoted extensively from a diary kept while in London.

Fortunately, the man obtained permission to leave the country for himself and his wife, and found means of meeting the cost of travel. But the journey from Novosibirsk was a continual torture. At station after station they found Polish children pleading for bread. The nightmare ended only when they reached Kharbin.

EVE DEFIES ADOLF

Before they left England for Buenos Aires, eighteen mannequins displayed to a group of South American diplomats the models specially designed by nine London Fashion houses for presentation in Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay.

This, the first London Fashion Collection, goes out triumphant from the midst of the "blitz." Time bombs isolated for a time the samples of the fabrics assembled for a preliminary selection. High explosives damaged their new quarters; and after the samples had been rescued intact from the debris, the fabrics were finally chosen to an orchestra of sirens, planes and bombs.

Next, the City fires destroyed certain of the fabrics. These were replaced. Then one manufacturer had to save his material from a warehouse, wrecked in Manchester. Throughout the winter's alerts the organizers of the Collection, brought together by the British Colour Council, have met in a beauty parlour, in railway stations, taverns and cellars.

Never have there been such odds against anyone "delivering the goods." They have done it on time, and it was a proud assembly which at last, in a Mayfair salon, saw in strict secrecy the final rehearsal of completed models. Among those there were His Excellency Dr. Tomas le Breton, the Argentine Ambassador, and Mademoiselle le Breton; His Excellency the Uruguayan Minister, Senor Don Daniel Castellana, and Madame de Castellana; Madame Mones de Arrago, the wife of His Excellency the Brazilian Ambassador and Senor a Flores Piren, Commercial Attache to the Argentine Embassy.

Novel Addition to Britain's Merchant Fleet

As part of a plan to tap a new source of merchant tonnage, the British Admiralty is now equipping with up-to-date plants derelict shipyards dismantled during the slump of a decade ago.

Vessels are to be built in sections at ordinary steelworks inland and transported to these assembly yards on the coast or to waterside sites on the great rivers for which a useful purpose has long been sought.

At least one-third of each ship will be dealt with outside the usual shipbuilding centres. The vessels are of a standard design, specially adapted to working under the convoy system with a carrying capacity of about 5,000 tons.

Similar mass-production ships built during the last war are still in service and change hands, when they can be bought, at about 600,000 a-piece. Since those days Britain has gained a great deal of experience in standardised shipbuilding and the new plan therefore offers no insurmountable problems to British shipbuilders. On the contrary, quite outside Britain's existing shipbuilding facilities, it points the way to the speedy construction of new ships to meet the demands of the U-boat and the bombing aeroplane.

Your Dollars Will Come Marching Home

Your pennies, your quarters, your dollars are needed in this war as much as the men at the front.

THEY are pledging their lives . . . will you not pledge your dollars?

THEIR lives may depend upon the planes, the bombs, the dollars, the ships YOU help to supply.

Will you refuse to back them up.

VICTORY will come sooner if you save and lend to the limit. Will you shirk YOUR part in shortening the war and hastening Victory?

YOUR dollars will come marching home when Victory is won, to bring security after the war.

Will YOU miss the thrill of having shared in the Victory, of having helped to build a sound Peace?

GARDEN SERVICE

During war time especially, the beginner in gardening is warned not to put more land into garden than he can handle. Instead of producing a plot that is a joy to his own family and the envy of his neighbors, he may simply have opened up a wider space for weeds to flourish. Planting or sowing a new piece of land is almost certainly going to be followed by a luxuriant crop of weeds, unless cultivation is maintained.

This is not difficult with a small piece of ground. One person can handle a quarter acre of vegetable garden in spare time, provided he is willing to devote an evening or so a week to it. If this time is not available, a much smaller plot should be chosen.

As a matter of fact, all experienced gardeners advocate a small, well-cultivated plot in preference to one larger and receiving less care. The smaller plot, too, in the end will produce the best and most vegetables. If the original digging is followed promptly and regularly with from two to four thorough cultivations, about a week or ten days apart, the weeds will get discouraged. To make sure, however, that the weeds are killed and not just temporarily put off from starting, it is well to allow sufficient time in between cultivations for the pests to germinate and start to grow.

Hot Beds

A hot bed for starting garden seeds early is usually prepared in March. It consists of a bed of fresh horse manure, which supplies the heat, about 18 inches deep. On this, two or three inches of fine soil is placed and after the bed has heated up, and then cooled down again (a matter of three or four days) the seed is sown in rows a few inches apart. The bed is protected by rough boarding along the sides and on top, and sloping towards the South about 10 to 15 inches above the bed is placed a window each end, or, if possible, a few plants are wanted, these may be started from seeds sown in flat boxes indoors and placed in sunny windows.

Like garden seed, it is important to secure nursery stock, fruit trees, rose bushes, shrubs, perennial flowers, etc., from a reputable source and one that is familiar and caters to Canadian conditions.

Good stock is pliable, green and shows plenty of live buds. Roots are moist and well-wrapped to exclude the air. Such will grow readily when planted. Brittle wood, wrinkled bark, or new plants, or roots that are dry roots are an indication of inferior, usually cheap stock. If it grows at all it will take years to make a real showing.

Nursery stock should be planted as soon as the soil is fit to work, and if purchased before this time or if inconvenient to plant, roots should be temporarily covered with moist earth or plants should be stored in a cool, dark cellar and roots kept moist.

World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

A ray of unusually clear logical and rational thinking about the international wheat industry recently illuminated the minds of the people of Winnipeg.

Dr. Joseph S. Davis, Director of the famous Food Research Institute of California, and who is a renowned authority on the marketing of wheat, made a series of addresses. Dr. Davis put forth following views, which, for one believes, should be most seriously pondered over by our wheat growers and by all Canadians.

(1) That it is an advantage to have large reserves of wheat during the course of the war.

(2) That the future of the Canadian wheat industry will depend upon the kind of peace that will be made.

(3) That there is no hope for any betterment of conditions, or for increased sales either by governmental "planning" or by international wheat marketing agreements.

(4) That the true hope for wheat growers is in the lowering of tariffs and in the removal of restrictions, quotas and agreements which have strangled international trade; all to open the way to freer world trade, and so to increased world consumption of bread.

(5) That the two decades of "Nationalism," "Self-Sufficiency" and "Isolated (Mia) Management," and of the restriction of foreign imports will be regarded as a crazy interlude in the economic progress of mankind.

Following factors have tended to raise price:— Japan has purchased recently, approximately one million bushels of U.S. wheat. The official estimate of 84 million bushels 1940-41 wheat crop is lowest in 22 years. Severe wintry weather has prevailed over Europe recently. Canadian government has announced program of payments to induce farmers to reduce wheat acreage.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Crop prospects continue favorable in the U.S.A. Further rains have fallen in Argentina. Great Bri-

THE CARE OF THE BULL

(Experimental Farms News)

The stockman who has gone to the trouble of buying a good sire must take good care of him. Fortunately, for a number of years the bull on many farms has been better treated than it used to be, yet, during the winter, too many farmers leave it in the darkest and dirtiest stable corner, without exercise, states Jean Lachapelle, Dominion Experimental farm, L'Assomption, Que. In the winter the bull should be in a fairly large, neat and light stable, with a door leading to a paddock outside, on the south side if possible, where it will be able to take some exercise on nice days. During the summer it should have a paddock near the stable. The bull should never be tied or let free in the field among the cows and heifers. Kept in this way, the bull will have the necessary exercise for its health and service required. His hoofs should be looked after and trimmed once in a while so as to be firm.

Since the bull never goes to pasture care must be given to his feeding. It must be kept in excellent condition, not too fat or thin. During the period of his growth, especially, care must be taken to see that he does not become too puny, which occurs when the bull eats too large quantities of coarse fodder. Its ration should be composed of succulent feeds, dry forage and concentrates. In summer, "succulents" should be alfalfa or clover green hay, and in winter, roots, silage or beet pulp. Best dry forage are legume hays. As for concentrates, mixtures must comprise 12 to 15 per cent crude protein, according to the quality of hay. The quantities of feed to serve depend a little on the animal itself, but, as a rule, about three-quarters of a pound of hay and one pound succulents per 100 pounds live weight is advised. The quantities of concentrates will vary according to the condition of the animal and the number of services required of him.

The care to give the bull is thus very simple, and any stockman willing to take a little trouble may hope to have successful results. Poles of often say, "Mr. Brown is lucky, while Mr. White is with a religion." Examining things more closely it will be found that Mr. Brown is lucky because he takes pains to succeed.

A BEAUTY SPRING-CLEANING!

Spring is here, and we all need to spring-clean our beauty, to give it new life. Beauty doesn't thrive in a hot-house atmosphere.

You're probably lethargic after the long winter. Shake yourself! Spend a few minutes daily stretching and exercising. Don't make a religion of it. Just enough to loosen the muscles.

The "inner woman" needs a tonic. Go easy on pastries and sweets. Eat plenty of fruit and green vegetables. Several mornings a week take a dash of health salts in a glass of water on arising. You can't look your best if your system is clogged.

Now for the part of you that shows! Perhaps we can't ALL have a "schoolgirl complexion," but long experience has taught me that we CAN all improve our looks.

MEDICAL EDUCATION FOR THE PEOPLE

Nothing in the realm of public health is of greater value than medical education of the people. From such books as Victor Heiser's "An American Doctor's Odyssey", thousands have learned that the control of epidemics is quite as fascinating a conflict as any of the wars which have occupied the attention of military leaders. Heiser, a native of the United States, was for 12 years medical officer in the Philippines following the occupation of the Islands. The country was in a bad state of health. There were malaria, hookworm disease and the annual crop of smallpox reached 40,000 cases. Dysentery was carried to everyone who drank water for all the water of the Island abounded in the infective amoeba. Rickets abounded because of the lack of vitamin D.

Heiser set about a "clean-up." He gained great difficulties, a small appropriation for the purpose of sinking artesian wells. He succeeded in getting good supplies of pure water, but the difficulty was to induce the natives to drink it. Coming as it did from a great depth, the Philippines regarded the new water as coming from the infernal regions. Would they drink it? Not they.

So Heiser was obliged to resort to harmless strategy. It happened that at the time there was a notorious case of hookworm disease in the city of Manila; the victim was an adult man whose growth had been stunted by the disease; he looked no bigger than a ten-year-old boy. He was almost transparent since his blood had been sucked out of him by the worms. Everyone knew the man. Heiser got him into the hospital, fed him some thymol which kills the hookworms, fed him up so that soon he looked like a new man. In some unaccountable way the story got about that this individual had been cured by the artesian water. Overnight there was a change in public sentiment; there was a run on the new water-supply. The people thronged to secure it, coming with every conceivable domestic utensil to grab the precious fluid. The water-supply problem was solved! The result was the control of dysentery.

The smallpox problem was solved by vaccination. More than a million of the Philippines were vaccinated. Never since that date has smallpox been a serious matter in the Islands.

Number one rule is to keep your skin immaculate. It isn't a matter just of cleansing with cream and lotion. You need to wash regularly, too. The soundest advice I can give you is to wash regularly with the delightful new palmolive soap, because it cleanses thoroughly and its foaming lather will help to bring new freshness and beauty to your skin.

Next, cream your face and neck night and morning with Three-Purpose cream, the lovely all-purpose cream.

During the next two months use the following face pack at fortnightly intervals: Beat up the plain white of an egg in a basin, then spread it over face and neck. It dries quickly. After 15 minutes remove it with cold water, then spread Three-Purpose cream lavishly.

Send for interesting booklet on Beauty Care, enclosing four one-cent stamps for postage. Address: Miss Barbara Lynn, Box 75, Station B, Montreal, Que.

The Government's Wheat Policy

The Government's plan to permit a maximum delivery of 250 million bushels of wheat (about 223 million for the West) for the crop year 1941-42 will mean a reduced wheat income to Western Canada for the coming crop year of probably 150 million dollars.

Recognizing that such a reduction in income is more than the West can bear, the Dominion Government proposes to give compensation to Prairie farmers. The exact amount and nature of the compensation cannot, however, be determined until the government policy is further explained and clarified.

One government statement is that the west will need a total income from all agricultural products of $25 million dollars. The similar income for this present crop year 1940-41 will amount to about 408 million dollars.

Even though compensation of one kind or another is paid to prairie farmers to bring their total revenue up to $25 million dollars, this would still mean a revenue for the coming crop year 1941-42 of 83 million dollars less than the farmers received for the same products for this present crop year 1940-41. The loss of 83 million dollars in one crop year would certainly bring considerable hardships to the West. The farmers themselves would probably manage somehow to get along, but after farmers had paid their expenses for living and production there would be very little money left for credits, for the payment of Dominion taxes, for the purchase of War Savings Stamps, War Savings Certificates, War Bonds, for subscriptions to the Red Cross, and for the support of other war activities, for it is to be remembered that even the revenue of this present crop year of about 404 million dollars was none too great. It certainly did not afford our farmers on the average anything approaching luxury purchases.

During the past 60 years our prairie farmers have added from wheat alone some 107 billion dollars to the economy of Canada. In view of this and of the great value from a military point of view of the present surplus of wheat—an important surplus of war—made available to Canada and to Britain at a very low cost, and in view further of the exceedingly high hourly rate of wages being paid to industrial workers in manufacturing plants making munitions and equipment for the Government, it certainly seems as though our farmers are entitled to the most generous consideration by the Dominion Government. It certainly seems, too, that it would be in the national interest, during this war time, to maintain our farmers and the whole economic structure of the West in a financially healthy condition so that our wheat growers and our whole wheat industry can, after this war, continue to make the same valuable contribution to the economy of the whole of Canada as they have done in the past 60 years.

Invest in a bomb now. YOUR bomb may "get" Hitler.

BOMBERS OVER CANADA

Canadians, who have always ranked high among the Empire's marksmen, are now learning a new kind of marksmanship. Day after day student bombers drop practice bombs with increasing accuracy on floating and stationary targets, find out how to keep their eyes on the target while travelling at nearly 250 miles an hour, writes Leonard Lewis in an article in the March issue of C-I-L Oval.

Air bombing is a scientific occupation requiring the knowledge of mathematics, steady nerves, quick-thinking and capable hands. At the Jarvis School on Lake Erie, No. 1 of ten bombing and gunnery schools to be established under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, nearly 100 training planes are in constant action and the administrative, instructional and maintenance staff consists of 800 men, mostly R.C.A.F. personnel. Before going to Jarvis, students officers have gone through most of the other air training courses, passing rigid tests and accumulating considerable knowledge of flying before they enter this final stage.

Chemistry, which enters in many ways into the making of aircraft, also makes an important contribution to bomber training through the small practice bombs used in these final exercises. Practice bombs weigh 11½ pounds each, compared to the 500 to 2,000 pound projectiles used in actual warfare, and are 15 inches long with a diameter of three inches at their thickest section.

All parts of the practice bomb are made in Canada, including the charge which is a product of the explosives chemist, according to the article. On ground targets, bombs charged with stannic chloride are used; on water targets, titanium tetrachloride. On contact with the ground or water a small charge of explosives blows off the tail of the bomb and frees the chemical charge. Contact of these acid with atmosphere or water causes a puff of white smoke by which the bomb aimer, thousands of feet above, may judge the accuracy of his aim.

WAINWRIGHT, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26th, 1941

THE WAR SERVICES APPEAL

On March 24, six hundred service organizations embraced in one corporation, operating without profit or authority of the Dominion Government, will launch a united nationwide appeal for $5,500,000. This is no ordinary drive for funds; it will be our only opportunity this year to make the lives of our fighting men happier and more comfortable, and to take care of the normal home services of several of the organizations.

Canada's governor-general, the Earl of Athlone, hit the nail squarely on the head when, in urging Canadians to support the war services, he said: "We cannot emphasize too greatly the importance of providing pleasant recreation, healthy relaxation and comforts for our sailors, soldiers and airmen, and we are sure that nothing contributes so much to their physical and spiritual well-being. These services signify to them the affection and thoughtfulness of the folk back home."

Ever since war was declared, the Canadian Legion, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. have been doing these services, with funds supplied by popular subscription.

Our enlisted Canadians are not in the strictest sense, professional warriors, but citizens who value their freedom and that of their families so highly that they voluntarily gave up civilian life to face the dangers and privations of war and to defend that freedom.

The war service organizations are answering needs which the government has asked them to meet. The government provides rations and military equipment, but it has required that entertainment and comforts be organized and supplied by those who did it so well in the last war. Because of Canada's expanding war effort, 50 per cent more money is needed. Canadians won't hesitate to give it.

OUR FIRST ALLEGIANCE BELONGS TO CANADA

(From "Der Nordwesten," German language weekly, Winnipeg.)
First and foremost let all of us who have taken upon ourselves the privileges and responsibilities of Canadian citizenship fully realize that whatever ties of kinship and sentiment we have with other lands, that Canada must claim our first allegiance. This will make it more difficult for undesirable elements to establish themselves among us. It will also help to bring about what the people of this country need more than anything else, namely a greater faith in Canada and a much stronger unity of ideals and purpose in making it a still greater and honored nation within the folds of the British Empire.

It is not suggested that this country has its fifth columnist, yet Norway has her Quisling and France her Laval. Let us be ready to put into deeds and action the words of the National Anthem of our Dominion: "O Canada we stand on guard for thee."

Line Elevators To Gather Scrap Iron

"Drop your scrap iron on Berlin" will be the slogan of a drive sponsored by local Line Elevator agents in which farmers will be asked to donate their scrap iron to all Britain. Plans are now under way for organizing every community for collection of scrap iron in Western Canada. Local Boards of Trade, Weekly Newspapers, Church Societies, farm organizations and all local associations will be asked to co-operate in the drive for collection of waste scrap iron. Its ultimate destination will be Germany via British bombers. In this manner, farmers will be enabled to give their direct reply to Hitler for his bombing of British cities.

The North-West Line Elevators Association has arranged with all Line Elevator agents to act as collecting agencies for the scrap iron. The preliminary organization for each community will be set up during the next few weeks and actual collection and shipment will take place between June 15 and July 15. It is felt that this date will best fit in with farming operations.

The only expense to be incurred in the organization of the "Drop your scrap iron on Berlin" campaign will be the freight charges. The entire proceeds other than freight costs will be turned over to the Patriotic Salvage Corps.

RED CROSS NOTES

This week an urgent appeal has been made from England for QUANTITIES of all kinds of articles: socks, mitts, sweaters, hospital supplies, clothing for the bombed areas—for everything the Red Cross has been supplying, but the call is for more and more supplies in the shortest possible time. With increased activity in the war zones comes increased need. The women of Britain will have little time for sewing, knitting, etc., and we must take on extra responsibility to replace them. Wainwright women have never been slackers, and will rise to meet this emergency. It was stimulating to see the response in the work room on Saturday when the new appeal was made known. As to the quality of work this letter just received from Edmonton, speaks for itself:

"Please thank the members of the Wainwright Branch for the beautiful box of work received today. It is a great help to get such a quantity of well-made articles, and we appreciate very much the quantity of socks, mitts and gloves which will help us all the urgent call. The box of baby clothes was a joy to the packers, and I am sure will please the people in England."

On Wednesday evening last the local W.L. entertained at a card party when no less than 50 tables were in play. Winners were: Ladies, Mrs. O. Michon, first, and Mrs. W. Cano, second. Gents, Mr. J. Tolmie, first, and Mr. L. Bean, second.

This dinner guests were entertained at the home of Mrs. R. A. Snyder to celebrate Bob's (7)-th birthday.

Miss Beattie Welch made her debut as a radio entertainer on Monday evening when she sang a couple of vocal selections over CKUA, the variety broadcasting station in Edmonton.

Having spent the past two months visiting with his mother in the States, Mr. George Christensen returned home here last week end.

It is pleasing to note that Mr. Rufus Carl who has been in the hospital for a couple of weeks is now up and around again.

Mr. Armstrong is deputising as customs collector in the Federal Building for Mr. H. Crampton during the latter's absence on holidays.

The Encampment members of the local Odd Fellows Order entertained a full house to a court wheel party on Thursday last. Winners at cards were Mrs. W. Milne, first; Mrs. W. Carrell, second; and Mr. G. Stewart, first; Mr. W. Goulet, second.

After spending some weeks at Vancouver, Mr. Wm. Moffatt returned here last week.

EDGERTON

Robert Watson, Sr., whose serious illness was reported in last week's issue, passed away quite peacefully in the early hours of Wednesday morning, March 19th, at the advanced age of 80. His death was due to cerebral haemorrhage and took place at the home of his only daughter, Evelyn (Mrs. Wm. Watson).

The funeral was held at 2 p.m., Thursday, March 20th, from the United Church, with the Rev. C. H. Morrison officiating, and the building was filled to overflowing with a large number of friends and acquaintances who joined the relatives in paying their last respects. A real old-timer of this district, the late gentleman was highly esteemed by all with whom he came in contact.

Full bearers were Messrs. A. E. Challenger, J. E. Challenger, P. S. Fawcett, D. Trimmer, O. Wabrecht and I. Kirinbill.

Besides his daughter, he leaves to mourn his loss, two sons, Ray and one or two great grandchildren.

His wife and youngest son, Ervin, predeceased him by several years. Very sincere sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

A Board of Trade meeting was held last Wednesday evening at the Bank of Montreal, and it was one of the best attended meetings to date. New officers were appointed and delegates chosen to go to Edmonton this week for the discussion—with others—of the ever-present problem of the highway situation.

It is understood that Wainwright and Chauvin are also sending delegates for the same reason. Let us hope for results this time.

The new officers are H. A. Kelly, President; F. L. Gilmour, vice-president; and J. S. Kluck, Secretary-Treasurer. Delegates re. roads are P. T. Milne, G. I. Sawyer and P. S. Pawsay.

Measles are still with us, and blossom forth much earlier than do the spring flowers. Robt. Maughan, Jr., Faye Jackson and Frances Thorpe are the three most recent victims.

The W. A. (Anglican) Silver Tea and Home-cooking Sale which had been postponed the previous week on account of adverse weather conditions was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kelly last Saturday afternoon. We understand that it was quite successful from every point of view, and can well believe the report. We dropped in for some of the stuff that cheers about 3:45 p.m., and must admit that we were well pleased with the delightful assortment of toothsome tid-bits that were so graciously served to us, in such pleasant surroundings.

Contrary to the popular belief that these teas are strictly feminine affairs, we can vouch for the fact that gentlemen attend them, too, and why not? especially when the cause is a good one.

It is understood that the proceeds will go towards a fund which is being raised to pay for some very necessary improvements and repairs to St. Mary's Church.

Sheepskin Flats

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Plaxton visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. G. Creech.

Although the roads are in such bad shape a good crowd attended the dance on Friday.

The Women's Welfare Club held its monthly meeting on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. F. Minier.

OF THESE THREE LOVES

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

CHAPTER 1

There was one little crimson spot against the green wall of Rydal Wood, a gay flamboyant jaunty pennon fluttering from the first lance of the Autumn's van-guard. Always it addended Gillian Meade, that little maple, proclaiming so valiantly among the hosts of green that soon now, soon, the mightier hosts of Autumn would be advancing. Then all the green army would fade, and drop its tattered pennons and the wind would roar and whistle around the ancient gates of Rydal House.

Sadness always came to Gillian with summer's end. Not that there had been much joy this year; certainly not at Rydal House, that had belonged to the Meades for well over a century and had been, too, a good house to them, for scarcely one cheek-bone and deep blue eyes, who looked attentively at her from the long mirror on the closet door—"you Gillian Meade, will have Patou diamonds and mink coats and diamonds and—oh, come in!"

The door of Gillian's sun-bright room opened and Colonel Anselm Meade came stiffly in. The room had a great dormer window and hangings of gay yellow chintz, a bit faded and a yellow rug with little red flowers, and a white bed and dresser and dozens of photographs. There was one of Colonel Anselm in his uniform as an officer of the Princess Pat's, with beads of medals and whatnots adorning his broad front. Gillian picked it up from its place of honor on the little white spinet desk and looked from it to the faded original. "My dream man," she whispered. Darling Anselm in the flesh—and he hasn't

"Because there's no money."

"That's it. Very good indeed, Gillian." Anselm slapped his thigh. "I always said you had the brains of the Meades. That's it exactly! No money—those were the words Hawtry used. Money's all spent, eh?"

"All spent, Anselm. All we have is Rydal and once we start to give it for collateral!"—she shrugged.

"But Gillian, we have to have money. Meade has always had money. Maybe too much money."

Gillian, who was a very grim. "That's so, Anselm. But, as you well know, Anselm, they had factories too and maybe an old brewery, and some of them were big shots in the stock market. All that's left now is the infant Deborah, concerned with clothes and sweethearts, the grown-up Gillian, who is quite useless."

"You're not useless, Gillian," the old soldier looked fondly at her. "You're a trump, girl—a trump. Real stuff in you—real, solid, gritty stuff in you, Gill."

She shook her head. "I don't know where it is, Anselm. I'm soft. I've had it easy all my life. A great house, fine clothes, servants, motors—a grand life, and I've loved it and I've hated to see it slipping, slipping away. Do you know what I was doing just before you came? I was making up my mind. Come here, sir!"

She took Anselm by the bony arm and led him, tall, gaunt, towering above her.

Anselm's gaze was steady on the brown sweet face, on the firm mouth, the upturned nose with its tiny freckles, the high clear forehead, the wide blue eyes with their lashes of a gold darker than the red gold of her hair. "You said you were making up your mind to what?"

"To marry."

"Ah! And how is that going to—" "A man with lots of money—more money than the Meades ever had."

"You mean Jonathan Hilmyer?" "I mean Jonathan Hilmyer. You know what it will mean. New life for Rydal House, new life for us all. We're going to have money. Is there anything wrong about my marrying Jon Hilmyer? He wants me. He can have me. He can pay for me."

"Gillian!"

She turned from the window to which, half angrily, she had gone and a long yellow sun shaft streamed suddenly in and bathed her rippling hair. Even so, Anselm remembered, had her mother, Gillian Crandall, looked, when long ago she had told Anselm Meade she loved his brother. "What do you want to say to me, Anselm?"

"I want you to ask a question, my dear. I want you, for once, not to laugh at me. Oh, I know as well as you how we've got by this last few years. Billie's penguin hat, billie's new jacket. I know all that. I know you can and it by marriage with Jonathan Hilmyer, an eminently practical and desirable match. There is only one thing. It brings me to the question: 'Do you love him?'"

"How should I know?" Gillian hedged. "Anyway, Anselm, why bring that up? Do you think it's so important? How many marriages have it, after all, when the first blush has worn off and he begins to notice the eggs aren't done right and the toast is burnt?"

"You're not answering me, Gillian." Poor old Anselm, standing there like a grenadier and talking like a convent girl. Love—what had love to do with it?

"It is so monstrous—not to love the man you marry? You look like an accusing prophet, Anselm. You make me feel, almost, that I'm about to commit a sin."

"I don't mean to, Gillian." Anselm suddenly turned, looked all of the sixty he admitted. It was just that I don't want you to be unhappy, don't want you to let yourself in for anything just because you think the show has to go on and this is the only way to keep it going."

She came over to him and kissed her arm about his neck and slipped him on the leathery cheek. "You're pretty splendid, Uncle. Don't want to see me sell myself for filthy lucre. Don't worry. I've thought it all out. I've been in love—I think that's what you call it—a number of times. Once, notably. You remember Jeffrey Clay, Anselm? Everybody does. Drank himself to death for the love of Gillian Meade, ruined his young life, destroyed his youth for a woman who—"

"Stop it!" Anselm shook her roughly by the flaring nostrils, the wide eyes, the distorted mouth, the signs of hysteria, gave way to serenity and repose. She said, "Sorry, Anselm. It's the story, you know. It makes a good story. Some smart-alec journalist even made capital of it because Jeffrey Clay was a poet. Was that love, Anselm? That was a lie and a cruel, ugly thing. I'll have no more of that."

"Let's not talk of it, Gillian. Some of us can guess at the truth, even if you will never say what happened between you and Clay. You know we were doing my dear—I hope you do. But you're so young and so splendid. I hate to think that you might make a mess of your life. Do these things mean so much to you, these things that require a lot of money?"

"They're all I know, Anselm. All I've ever known. What else is there?"

He thought of David, her father, killed in France. She had scarcely known him; of Gillian Crandall, carried, white-faced and broken, from the hunting field, to linger a few months, then go; of the two frightened, little ones, Gillian and Deborah, and of himself, their guardian. He had tried, after his rough fashion, tried hard, but somewhere along the road he had failed. There had been lots of money until a few years ago, then suddenly there had been scarcely any, and he was too old, too broken, to do anything about it. And here was Gillian—

"I'm going to a weekend party at Jon Hilmyer's lodge, Anselm. He's going to ask me to marry him. He told me so. And I'm going to say yes. You know Jon Hilmyer—shipyard, drydocks, gold mines, more money than he can count. He's not so young, but neither is he old and fat. And there's not a girl in our set who wouldn't jump through the hoop for him. I'm the one he's chosen."

"I suppose it's the best thing, Gillian."

She glanced up at Anselm and all the rallyry went out of her. She had never seen him look so old. "Were you ever in love, Anselm?" she said softly. "I know you were, of course. With whom?"

"With—with your mother. You see?" Anselm shook his head. "I met her first and I thought I had a chance. Then she came here to visit and she met David, your father. He was the one. She was happy, Gillian—only a little while—but so happy. She loved."

He turned towards the door. "You'll think that's a lot of sentimental twaddle, I suppose, Gillian. Was waiting for you to say, 'Stop, Anselm, you're breaking my heart.' Probably it does belong to another day."

"It's very sweet, Anselm," said Gillian softly. "Sweet and fragrant and dear—like something kept in lavender for a long, long time. Darling Anselm! Don't worry about me. I'll be all right."

"Good luck, Gillian. All the luck in the world."

He went out. She listened to his uneven, stiff-legged step along the hall. She had always loved Anselm. Always, she and Deborah had played a grand serious game with Anselm, pretending he was the stern uncle, that his will was carried out in everything and his word was law. Really, it never was. Presently she would have Anselm thinking that he had arranged for her to marry Jonathan Hilmyer and that it was quite the best thing for her to do.

As it is, she thought determinedly. Love is all very well. I used to listen, stony-eyed, to Jeffrey Clay's verse and I thought I was in heaven and that if anything happened to destroy that heaven, I'd die. I'd never be the same. Then something did happen and the heaven proved to be only a crystal and it was smashed into a million bits and grains and then stamped upon. And I survived. She put on a well-worn jacket of buff-colored tweed and went out. On the stairs she whistled and a white collie came running to meet her in the lower hall.

of the family had spent a dollar on its upkeep. The ones who could spend, wouldn't; the ones like Gillian, who would, never seemed to have a dollar.

Right now there was a quarter and some smaller change in the pockets of Gillian's faded fawn riding-breeches. And that was about all she owned in the way of worldly wealth. The other Meades, Colonel Anselm and young Deborah, wouldn't be much more affluent. This week-end though, Gillian thought, would see all that remedied. "And you—" she spoke almost carelessly to the aged-darkened, beamed ceilings of Rydal House, "you will get some long-needed attention. And you—" she spoke to the stables—"will have new tenants for those empty boxes. And you"—she spoke to the willow-sender, red-headed girl with the high changed a bit!"

"Haven't he?" One of Colonel Anselm's legs was a bit stiff because it was made of wood, but he was straight and hard as oak and he crossed the yellow rug with the red flowers quite as if it were a parade ground and glared at Gillian as if she were the newest recruit, with her tunic on backwards. "Do you know what Hawtry told me just now when I told him to bring me a whiskey and soda?"

Gillian shook her head and the red bob showered off golden lights like a myriad of little cascades leaping in a crimson sunset. "What did Hawtry tell you, Anselm?"

"That there's no whiskey. When I told him to get some, he said he couldn't."

"And shall I tell you, Anselm?" Gillian cocked her head, as him

Healthful Lenten Meals

By BETTY BARCLAY

The cook's problem is unusually difficult during the Lenten season. There is a craving for heavy, satisfying foods that she finds it hard to satisfy. Plain baked or fried fish is good, but tiresome if repeated too often.

How about a combination of macaroni and fish — carbohydrates and proteins in abundance? Vary your fish. Vary your carbohydrate foods also by serving egg noodles with fish, macaroni with fish and then spaghetti with steak. Your problems for Lent will then be over so far as the main dinner dish is concerned.

Macaroni is a nutritious wheat food. It and the different shaped spaghetti and egg noodles are often called "the easy trio." Any member of this trio blends naturally with vegetables, meat or fish to produce a well-balanced, healthful dish.

Here are three recipes showing how the foods mentioned above may be combined into three different yet equally delicious luncheon or dinner dishes:

Egg Noodle Lenten Dish
8 ounces egg noodles
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup diced turnips
1 cup peas
1 cup chopped almonds
1 small onion minced
1 medium can tuna fish flaked
1/4 teaspoon salt
Cook egg noodles in boiling salted water until tender, then drain. Cook the vegetables and salt in enough water to cover, saving the vegetable liquid. Make a cream sauce of:
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup vegetable liquid
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
In a casserole put a layer of egg noodles, then a layer of the mixed vegetables, and then a layer of the baked tuna fish. Repeat until all ingredients have been used. Pour the sauce over the contents of the casserole. Cover the top with one cupful of buttered bread crumbs. Bake this dish thirty minutes at 350 degrees and serve it hot.

Spanish Macaroni Casserole
(A time-saver and appetite-appeaser)

1 lb. macaroni
1 lb. cheese, grated or cut in small pieces
1/2 cup diced celery
3 medium onions (chopped fine)
1 can whole tomatoes
2 lbs. chopped green pepper
2 lbs. butter
2 cups white sauce
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook onions, green pepper and celery in the butter until tender. Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender and drain. Combine macaroni and cooked onion mixture in layers in baking dish with alternate layers of cheese and tomatoes. Season and pour white sauce over it. Cover and bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

This recipe provides a tasty, full-meal luncheon dish. For the more elaborate dinner, try serving it with your favorite fish — halibut, trout, or other fillets.

Butter-Cheese Spaghetti
To 1 quart of boiling water in top of a double boiler, add 1/2 lb. spaghetti. Cover and simmer until water has cooked out (10 to 12 minutes). Add 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 lb. grated cheese and seasoning. Mix well. An excellent accompaniment for fish, fowl, meats or deviled eggs.

Since they are basically wheat foods, macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodles may be substituted for the one specifically mentioned in any of these recipes, — with equally pleasing results.

Children's Delight

1 package lemon rennet powder
1 pint milk
4 or 5 canned apricot halves.
Make rennet-custards according to directions on package. When ready to serve top each rennet-custard with a canned apricot half, rounded side up.

Ho-Peep's Party Fudding
1 household rennet tablet
1 pint milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon cocoa
5 tablespoons honey
1/4 cup heavy cream
1 cup crisp rice, corn or wheat flakes

Set out 4 or 5 individual dessert dishes. Dissolve rennet tablet by crushing in a tablespoon of cold water in a cup. Mix 3 tablespoons honey and cocoa to a smooth paste. Heat slowly to boiling, stirring constantly; then cool. Make rennet-custards according to directions in package, substituting honey-and-cocoa mixture for sugar.

When ready to serve, top with honeyed whipped cream and cereal flakes, made by whipping the cream and then mixing in a cup of cereal flakes and 2 tablespoons of honey.

SUCCOTASH AND SOUP

Soups and succotash are among the tasty, flavorful, healthful foods that should be served frequently. A few foods lend themselves particularly well to such dishes. Among these are cooked, dried Lima beans that may be procured in cans the whole year round.

Basic Recipe

To revive the fresh, juicy tenderness of dried Limas, soak them in cold water from 6 to 8 hours. Drain. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly until tender (about 30 minutes). Add salt after 30 minutes cooking. (This basic recipe applies to either large or baby Limas.)

Succotash

1 cup cooked, dried Limas
2 cups corn, fresh or canned
1/2 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon chopped parsley
1 pound stewed beef cut in small pieces
1 beef bone
1 quart cabbage, sliced
1 onion, sliced
1/2 teaspoon carrot, diced
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper.
Cover Limas with cold water, bring slowly to boiling point, drain and rinse with cold water. Put in large kettle, add cold water, meat and bones, cabbage, onion, carrot, parsley and seasonings. Bring to boiling point and simmer 3 hours. Remove meat and bone. Cool, then remove fat. Re-heat.

1 cup mashed potatoes
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
Salt and pepper

Meals On Tray Should Tempt Eye and Appetite

Whether your meals on a tray are the day by day kind served to a convalescent or the occasional indulgence of a favorite sleepy head, they must be tempting in taste and appearance.

If you are serving anything hot, warm the dishes ahead of time. And be sure the coffee is hot. It's a good idea to serve decaffeinated coffee, so that longed-for second cups won't lead to worry over sleeping problems. Give eye appeal to the tray with a few flowers, a little plant, a tiny cactus or some little ornament. Use your most attractive china and be sure the table linen is spotless.

Here are two recipes that the convalescent will like.

Spiced Coffee
6 cups freshly brewed decaffeinated coffee
1/4 cup whipping cream, whipped
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
Top hot coffee with a spoonful of whipped cream into which the spices have been folded. Sugar may be served with the coffee if desired. A piece of cinnamon stick makes an amusing stirrer instead of a spoon for spiced coffee.

Mocha Tapioca
1/3 cup quick cooking tapioca
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups hot strong decaffeinated coffee
1/2 cup sugar
2 egg yolks, well beaten
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Add quick-cooking tapioca and salt to coffee, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Pour small amount of tapioca mixture over egg yolks, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from fire, cool, and fold in egg whites. Chill in short glass. Top with whipped cream. Serves 6.

It's not much good to try forcing milk down a child's rebellious throat. This method is likely to increase the dislike. But the wise mother can give her children the necessary quota of this food by using a little good common sense.

Children like puddings, custards or almost anything in the desert line. One of the most delicious ways to serve milk is in the form of rennet-custards—good light desserts. Here are two sample recipes for your consideration:

The DIAL REVIEW
by Walter Davis

Have you got a smart dog? Then maybe you can be a songwriter too. At least, Jean Shorrock says that's the secret of her success as a song-writer. You probably know her as "Edie" of "Pepper Young's Family," (CJCA, 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday). She has just had the song "Memories and Old Refrains" published, and gives her airlead, "Bum," credit as co-author. She explains: "When I wrote the lyrics, I read them to 'Bum,' who would listen attentively. If he liked them his eyes would show it and his tail would wag. But when his head went down and a sad look came into his eyes, I knew the words were pretty corny." "Bum" is apparently a gifted dog. Jean says he often rehearses her for her radio role. He can also run off a piece or two at the piano. He sits at the table, too, nodding his head when he wants the bread passed, and raising two paws if he wants more meat. He must be almost as likeable as his mistress.

"You'll be glad to hear that Jack Benny has renewed his contract with his present sponsors. The comedian will stay with them for another year, following the termination of his present contract next June. This will current sponsors, and his tenth as a radio comic. He entered radio in 1932, the same year as Eddie Cantor, Bing Crosby, and Burns and Allen. Since his airwave entry Jack has been named the best liked personality and favorite comedian by radio listeners and radio editors more often than any other microphone star.

Frank Dane, who has played a detective many times in the "Story of Mary Martin," (CJCA, Monday thru Friday, 1:00 p.m.), was himself the center of a detective mystery recently. He was shaken out of a sound asleep by a pair of policemen and asked if he had ever seen an envelope that one of the coppers waved at him. He identified it as one he had received the week before. "Maybe you'd like to know where we found it," hinted one of the gendarmes. Dane nodded. Last time he'd seen it was when his wife tossed it in the wastebasket. "Mister, we found that envelope in an apartment about two miles away from here this morning—the apartment had been cleaned out of several thousand dollars worth of furs and clothing. You sure you weren't down there?" Fortunately Dane's radio assignments furnished him with an al-tight alibi. But the cops (and Dane) are still trying to figure out how an envelope could get from the waste basket to the scene of a crime two miles away!
